the first year of the reign of the emperor, the people were in a state of great distress, and the emperor was very anxious to relieve them.

He therefore issued a decree, that all the taxes should be remitted for that year, and that the people should be allowed to cultivate their fields without any interruption.

He also ordered that all the public works should be suspended, and that the people should be allowed to spend their time in agriculture.

By these measures, the emperor succeeded in relieving the people from their distress, and the country soon returned to its former state of prosperity.
